THURSDAY, JUNE 1

Opening: Araya Rasdjarmrearnsook at Tyler Rollins Fine Art

In past works, Araya Rasdjarmrearnsook has given lectures to corpses and filmed her paralyzed dog, who, for a miraculous hour, regained the power to walk. The Thai artist's videos ponder mortality, usually with dry humor and Buddhist principles thrown in. With her latest show at Tyler Rollins Fine Art, Rasdjarmrearnsook will continue exploring the cycle of life, this time by looking at how we relate to objects both mundane and valuable. Her installation Jaonua: The Nothingness, a version of which initially premiered at the 2016 Singapore Biennale, features various moving images projected onto objects, from a bed to a rug, while her video Sanook Dee Museum observes Thai museum visitors as they look at art.

Tyler Rollins Fine Art, 529 West 20th Street, 10W, 6–8 p.m.
